

Suzanne

Madrid
December
05-12-2019

Lieve Suzanne,

Throughout history it has been seen again and again,
Other species do not mix favourably with men,

Orcs, trolls, giants, balrogs, infiri, and other creatures, are shown with fangs and other sorts of horrible features.

And even regarding the fairy folks, they get a rough ordeal,
They are tortured, slain in battle, forced emigration: no nice deal.

The odd exemption, with a human mate,
They always meet with a tragic fate

Elrond's wife: killed by orcs; his daughter seduced by a Ranger,
In Middle-earth history, is tragedy certainly no stranger.

The one thing I can certainly tell,
That you like LOTR pretty well.

This tragic story happened thousands of years before,
I wonder whether you like it, less or even more.

It tells the unfortunate story of the elf Luthien, and Beren her friend,
Who dies obtaining a Silmarillion from the witch-king of Angmar in the end.

(miauw) Poes-Piet